

WE NOMINATE

Eve Friedmann Kraft, described by one observer as a "benefactress of Princeton youth" and by another as a "refreshing influence" in the national junior development movement of young athletes of high promise, who in this frigid first week of spring is entering upon still another year as Director of the Princeton Community Tennis Program. This 40-year old mother of three sons, the oldest of whom is heading for his freshman year at Harvard, has performed miracles in Princeton: in a decade a program originally numbering a handful of boys and girls has grown to the point where it now enrolls more than 1,000 in a year-round schedule taught by a "faculty" of some 70 persons.

Wife of a member of the Princeton University Class of 1914, and a tennis enthusiast since her childhood years in Philadelphia, Mrs. Kraft founded this distinctive program when her sons were ready to begin lessons and she realized "they would do best if their friends also played." She started slowly with the support of a few concerned parents, gradually interested municipal and University authorities, and built so skillfully that the Princeton program has been described by the past president of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association as "one of the best junior programs in the country"—with a non-profit budget as large as that of the National U.S.L.T.A. Junior Development Committee.

Writing in the current issue of University, a Princeton Quarterly with a circulation approaching 70,000, Mrs. Kraft, a graduate of Antioch College, emphasizes that this community-wide venture (and, she notes, "appropriately for a program with university connections") is concerned not only with "encouraging and teaching tennis but with finding new ways of teaching." For instance, the Kraft-written "Tennis Workbook," a form of programmed learning permitting each student to proceed at his own pace, is now in its fifth printing.

Originally mimeographed for purely local use, it has been reproduced in book-form and has been distributed to 13,000 schools, parks, camps and clubs throughout the world.

One of Mrs. Kraft's most enthusiastic disciples is the "Dean of the P.C.T.P. Faculty," John J. Conroy, the University's nationally known coach of tennis and squash. "Many pros, including myself," Conroy notes, "were skeptical at first about group teaching in such a complex sport as tennis, but, after a decade of association with the Community Program, I am convinced it is great. It brings together people of like interests and abilities so that they can practice and learn together. It affords an opportunity for making friends . . . Tennis has moved out of the wealthy country club atmosphere to public parks and community programs like ours."

The most impressive feature of this successful undertaking, to which the community's physical education teachers and the Y.W.C.A. have made major contributions, is its Leader Corps, a major teen-age activity in Princeton and an honor group showing special aptitude and maturity who can assist the teacher with both instruction and discipline. These 50-60 boys and girls "come up through the ranks," apply for the Corps, complete 50 volunteer hours as apprentices, and finally, if qualified in the junior or senior high school year, become paid workers and "teaching assistants."

For providing Princeton with a truly outstanding local tennis program, the hallmarks of which are individual attention and progression in depth; for sharing her findings and experiences with others interested in working for similar goals; for distinguished, self-effacing leadership in community affairs; she is our nominee as

VIETNAMESE QUESTIONED
By Opinion Research. How do the people of South Vietnam feel about war and peace? Questions rarely if ever asked of the South Vietnamese people themselves were asked over the winter and reported this Tuesday and Wednesday as a CBS News Television Special. The program had a special interest here because the questions were prepared for CBS by Opinion Research Corporation of Princeton under the guidance of Herbert I. Abelson, 137 Loomis Court.

Dr. Abelson has been with ORC since 1956 and is a vice-president of the firm. He is a psychologist specializing in attitude studies — how opinions are formed and changed — and he applied his specialized knowledge to the Vietnam situation on assignment for CBS last fall, spending 10 days in Vietnam on the project.

"Our survey data from South Vietnam definitely establishes that the people are in general agreement with U.S. goals," Dr. Abelson emphasized, "but they disagree sharply with our methods."

Vietnamese Opinion. "For example, two out of every three Vietnamese would rather see more negotiation than escalation of the war — the figure is 63%. Also, half of the people we interviewed want us to stop bombing and burning villages where the VC are thought to be hiding, even when Americans regard the action as necessary. The figures show that 50% of the women want us to stop and 47% of the men.

"And then, in regard to American forces in Vietnam one-third of the people we interviewed thought the Americans should remain only as advisors, or else go home!"

When Dr. Abelson asked "If you were given three wishes for your country . . ." 88% of the Vietnamese replied "Peace, the end of the war." An equally strong desire — 83% — is for a unified country and for a government led by Nationalists rather than Communists. The Nationalists would provide a better life for PRINCETON GOES TO SAIGON: Herbert I. Abelson, known in Princeton for his political activity (he's Township vice-president for the new Princeton Community Democratic Association), was anchor man in Saigon for the survey done by Opinion Research Corporation for CBS-TV. the Vietnamese and their families than the Communists would, said 83% of those interviewed. Vietcong participation in the postwar government is opposed by 73%.

How To Ask Questions. Interviewing South Vietnamese involves military strategy all its own, the most obvious problem being the selection of a sample outside the war zones. "We chose more hamlets than we needed in case the military situation changed; actually, there were 14 villages we had to replace because they were no longer secure."

Twenty trained interviewers from the staff of the Center for Vietnamese Studies were used in the survey. (The Center, in existence since 1958, has highly trained and sophisticated technicians who have done surveys for the U.S. and Vietnamese governments and for various foundations. Its director, Nguyen-Koa Phomah, will be in Princeton this spring.)

"We did half of our interviews — 750 out of 1,545 — in rural areas, 500 in Saigon and the rest in the four largest cities, Hue, Da-nang, Dalat and Can-Tho," Dr. Abelson explains. "This meant that our interviewers had a real transportation problem. They would fly out of Saigon, but eventually they would have to get from village to village by bus and once a bus was stopped by some VC disguised as South Vietnamese military policemen."

"Our man could tell they were imposters because they were barefoot! They threatened to blow up the bus with grenades, but this turned out to be bluff, and our man went on and did his interviews."

Candid Countrymen. In the rural areas, Dr. Abelson says, the interviewers found that people were frank and open, "but in Saigon, we figure that about 20% of the respondents distorted their replies. You can't fake data analysis, though, and we had them down for age, sex, education, degree of optimism," the feeling they had on bombing and burning, and here, there was consistency all along."

Questions prepared by Dr. Abelson, were translated into Vietnamese and then back into English, then into Vietnamese and back into English again until everyone was satisfied that the meaning was as clear as possible.

No one escaped: "We found we had chosen some tribesmen who didn't speak Vietnamese — we just had to leave them out!"

On arrival in a hamlet, the interviewer would confer with the chief, because familiarity and acceptance were necessary before the interviews could be conducted.

"We got an under-representation of young men of draft age," Dr. Abelson observes. "You see, our interviewer obtained a complete list of everyone in the family and chose his respondent from that list, so we knew the composition of each family. Families were simply hiding their draftable young men."

Who Will Win? In other areas of questioning, 64% of the Vietnamese thought that South Vietnam was winning the war; 30% had "no opinion." In almost the same proportion, 62% thought that South Vietnam would win, 34% had "no opinion."

But pessimism was evident, Dr. Abelson points out, in the 64% who said they didn't know when the war would be over. "It's impossible to say," they would reply, "Another year, maybe ten more years."

Asked what they liked about the Americans, 28% mentioned food and medicines, and the construction of schools, hospitals, bridges. Of those asked, 22% said they valued military aid the most. But 30% said "no opinion." About one-fourth of the people disapproved of the Americans, either because "they get drunk and do wrong things in the streets" or "do here bombing, killing the people and damaging their houses although they do not know if the VC are there or not."

On the other hand, 20% liked the Americans for personal qualities of bravery or good nature.

Almost one third had no answer to the question "In your opinion why do the Americans fight in Vietnam?" The percentage of "don't know" replies was 34%, compared to the 29% who answered "Containment of Communism, Ideal of freedom."

Dr. Abelson considered the fact that a low level of literacy might be responsible for many of the "don't know" answers, but 82% of the people interviewed said they listen to radio broadcasts.

Future? Are things better or worse than a year ago? Of those asked, 48% said "worse." "Our salary raise doesn't rope with the increase in cost of living," or "As refugees, we have left all our ricefields and houses and have no means of livelihood."

"In a year, will life be better or worse than today?" Of those questioned, 26% think they will be better off — but 42% simply say "no opinion."

Dr. Abelson himself, his mission done, has no plans to return to Vietnam.

NEED A NEW SEWER?

Yes. Plans for a giant, overall regional sewer system in the Stony Brook-Millstone area have probably gone down the drain because of cost, but smaller "sub-regional" systems may be a possibility.

Borough Mayor Henry S. Patterson told his press conference this week that the subcommittee assigned to study the original report had decided that full regionalization was "too rich."

The report, prepared by the engineering firm of Seelye, Stevenson, Value and Knecht, and released last August proposes a $75-million regional sewer project for the 285 square miles of the Stony Brook - Millstone watershed area.

As an example of the plan's cost, Mayor Patterson said that Hopewell Township could build a sewer system alone for about $750,000, whereas Hopewell's share of the regional trunk line would be $3 million.

At the moment, the subcommittee is waiting for returns on a questionnaire submitted to towns in the area asking how they feel about a sub-regional system.

Princeton's answer is that the Joint Sewer Operating Committee and Borough Council aren't interested in changing Princeton's current set-up very much if it means some sewer plant is going to be built upstream from Princeton in Hopewell. Mayor Patterson said. Township Committee hasn't talked over the matter yet.

Landlord? Princeton might consider allowing its plant to be the location of the "first plant" along the line. Mayor Patterson suggested. (The state won't allow a treatment plant that would put effluent back into the stream above Kings-ton.)

Under such an arrangement, other municipalities might use the Princeton plant and perhaps become part-owners, the mayor suggested.

Princeton's system is just about on the brink of eternity, as the overflowing rains of two weeks ago clearly proved. Engineering studies have been made on the cost of bringing the Princeton plant into the 20th century, but Princeton has been reluctant to spend anything on modernization until regionalization is settled.

DINKY DERAILED

Commuters Delayed. The two-car shuttle that connects Princeton with the outer world via the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad was derailed Wednesday morning. Scores of commuters were late in reaching their desks in New York and Philadelphia.

The accident occurred at 7:20 as the dinky left the station here, outward bound and empty, to pick up passengers arriving at the Junction from New York. Two car lengths after it cleared the platform, the wheels on the front trucks of the first car left the track, as did the first wheel on the rear trucks.

Suburban Transit buses were pressed into service to ferry passengers to the Junction. A crane worked to replace the front car of the dinky of the tracks, but the buses continued to carry passengers during the morning.

SNOWFALL NEARS RECORD
Less Than 2 Inches to Go.
Aided by additional snow that began to fall Tuesday when spring was less than four hours old, the season that extends from November through April may well set an all-time record.

To date, the Weather Man has provided 50.6 inches for Mercer County. The greatest amount in U. S. Weather Bureau records is the 51.7 inches that fell in 1957-58. And the "season" has another six weeks to go.

Winter went into the books Tuesday morning at 2:37, just 48 hours after it had set a record low of 9 for March 19. That broke handily the old record of 17, set in 1949. (In the outlying areas of Marshall's Corner, between Hopewell and Pennington, the Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association took a week-end reading of 12 below zero, but temperatures in Mercer County's icebox are often 10 to 15 degrees below the official temperatures recorded in Trenton by the Weather Bureau.)

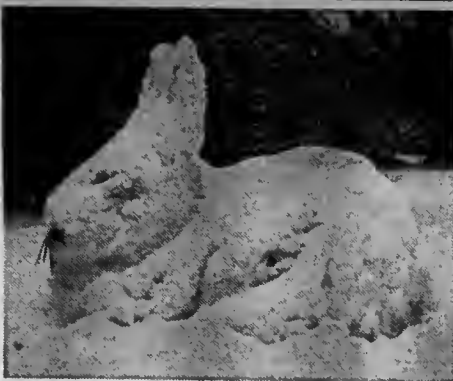

Actually, the minimum readings for Friday, Saturday and Sunday were all new lows, making it the coldest March week-end in Weather Bureau history. Oddly enough, the warmer weather earlier in the month has resulted in readings a shade above average so far for March.

December averaged one degree above normal (36.2), while the welcome January thaw shot that month four degrees above average. February, marked on the 7th by a 12.6-inch snowfall to 14-degree temperature, was three degrees below normal and is, in any case, the coldest month of the year with its 33.4 degree average.

The long-range forecast holds little pleasure for those who hope for an early spring. Temperatures are expected to average below normal right through the first half of May. "Summer," the Man reports, will come a couple weeks early. No one, it seems, is pushing spring.

NO PARKING DECISION
For Springdale. The question of a 2 a.m. to 10 a.m. parking ban in the Springdale Road area is still unsettled and unanswered.

Township Committee heard residents from the Springdale section on Monday night and then, in response to a petition, introduced a new ordinance omitting Newlin and Ober. Residents from the list of streets where the ban would be in effect. Mayor Carl C. Schafer voted against amending the original ordinance, which had SNOW BUNNY: He hopped quietly from behind a curtain of snow and just sat there on the lawn at 247 Moore Street, munching carrots and pine branches and wondering, along with the rest of Princeton, about the chances for a sunny Easter.

included Newlin and Ober. Public hearing on the new measure will be held April 3.

The question is closely linked to a second question: should overnight parking be prohibited everywhere in the Township? Police Chief James Campbell Jr., said again on Monday night that he'd like to see an overall-overnight ban. So would the engineer because it would make street-cleaning easier.

Committeeman John Wallace made a strong push in favor of the ban, but Committeeman William Wilson, who has been around on Committee longer than the freshman Mr. Wallace said let's study the problem once again.

Protest All-Day Cars. Property-owners told Committee Monday night that some cars park 24 hours at a time on Springdale-area streets. One owner protested that the Township couldn't clear leaves from her curbs because cars were in the way, and she said owners of the cars tossed beer cans on her lawn.

Residents suspect that most of the cars parked on Springdale, Battle, Haslet and Olden belong to graduate students who park there because the authorized University lot is too far away.

H. Walter Dodwell, chief security officer at the University, told Committee that graduate students are directed not to park on these streets because of "town-gown relations."

But graduate cars are hard to identify, Mr. Dodwell said, because graduates deliberately leave off the bumper stickers they are supposed to use. Next year, he said, anybody caught without a bumper sticker will get a stiff University fine.

Budget Approved. The Township's $1.6 million budget ($537,313 to be raised by taxes) passed its public hearing with high marks.

Henry J. Frank, 126 Valley Road, the Township's conscience in budget matters, questioned the increase in recreation from $35,000 to $80,000. "We could trim some fat here," he suggested.

"Committee felt, unanimously, that this is not the year to skimp on recreation," Mayor Schafer replied, adding that the Recreation Commission had already pared $20,000 from its original budget. He also pointed out that last year's budget was for the 10 weeks the pool was supposed to be open in 1966 as opposed to the 15 weeks the pool will definitely be open in 1967.

"We must be sure we have enough life guards proper sanitation, and so on," Mr. Wilson said. "This first year is terribly important."

Bookkeeping. "I'm glad you didn't cut back on recreation," said Miss Helen Fairbanks, 70 Valley Road, another voice of conscience for Committee, "but why $15,000 more for sewers and why did the library cut back on books, of all things?"

Administrator Joseph R. Nini pointed out that sewer costs are based on a use formula, and the Township is just Another spring repertory play, "The Tempest," is also scheduled to close soon. The final performance of Shakespeare's fantasy will be given on Friday, April 7 at 8:30.

under the direction of Jack Cardiff.
Dean Stockwell stars as the miner's son, dominated by a possessive mother, played by Wendy Hiller. The two young women in his life are portrayed by Heather Sears and Mary Ure, and the brutish father by Trevor Howard.

Butterfield Coming. Part of the University's "Response"

WE IMPROVISE . . .
In Goldoni Play. "Comedy needs cries, glances, gestures, props and kicks!" say Frederic O'Brady, lecturer in French at Princeton, who is directing Goldoni's "The Servant of Two Masters" for McCarter. The comedy will open Friday, March 31, at 8:30.

Mr. O'Brady has announced that his production will follow Goldoni's recommendations for improvisation, because "comedy," as the Italians found out centuries ago, cannot stand on the 'word' alone. Goldoni only warns us to keep within the bounds of decency!

An authority on the Commedia Dell'Arte and an actor, as well, Mr. O'Brady will be remembered by McCarter audiences for his portrayal last year of the landlady in "Box and Cox."

WANT TO BE "J.B."?
Tryouts Scheduled. Leading roles in the Chapel Deacons' production of Archibald MacLeish's drama, "J.B.," will be up for tryout next Monday and the following Monday, April 3.

Tryouts will be held in the Princeton University Chapel starting at 8 p.m. Anthony Stimac, the director, needs five women and six men.

Additional information about the production may be obtained from Jeff Waggoner, 924-4572, or Carl Reimers, 921-9087.

"SONS AND LOVERS"
Next, in Film Series. The "novel-into-film" series at McCarter will continue next Tuesday at 8 with the adaptation of D. H. Lawrence's "Sons and Lovers," made in 1960 weekend will be the appearance in McCarter Theatre of the Paul Butterfield Blues Band on Friday, April 14, at 9:30 p.m. The late starting time accommodates the unusual "Response" schedule.

The Butterfield musicians combine folk, blues, rock and jazz into a new sound which is nonetheless rooted in the Chicago blues tradition.

Butterfield plays microphone along with blues harmonica, cupping the mike in his hands as he plays. By changing the positions of microphone and instrument, he produces the variety of effects that he seeks.

Tickets are on sale now at the McCarter box-office.

LIKE TO SING, DANCE?
More Auditions Set. "Finian's Rainbow" needs more singers for the chorus, especially men. The choreographer wants more dancers, and they still don't have that harmonica player.

Another set of auditions for the P.J.B.B. production of "Finian's Rainbow" will be held this Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1 and from 2:30 to 5:30. Anyone who wants to audition should call McCarter Theatre, 921-8700, to arrange for a specific audition time. No experience is necessary.

The additional audition periods have been scheduled to take care of last week's overflow, but there is need for more and still more. "Finian" has one chorus number after another," explains Milton Lyon, who will direct. "In fact, the chorus is on stage more than some of the principals."

PLAYHOUSE AND PRINCE
Dr. Zhivago (held over) fascinating film version of Boris Pasternak's Nobel Prize-winning novel. Reviewed in last week's issue.

GARDEN

Tobruk (Thurs. thru next Wed.) This is a big-scale war film that puts emphasis first and foremost on action that almost never lets up for 110 minutes. The story is based on a true incident in the African desert fighting in World War II.

Prior to a full Allied assault on Tobruk, firmly held by Field Marshal Rommel and his troops, an advance guard of some 90 men was dispatched to knock out strategic gun installations and destroy fuel bunkers. This group consisted of British soldiers and some German-born Palestinian Jews, the latter instructed to act as Nazis to get the others through Axis checkpoints.

The screen version of the carrying out of this task is not too credible. It happened, one feels, but not in quite this way. But action is the keynote of this film and it begins with the very first scene in which Rock Hudson, as a British officer captured by the Vichy French, is rescued aboard a ship in Algiers by the group of Jews led by George Peppard. In frogmen attire, they steal aboard and free Hudson, who doesn't know at first that these Germans are on his side.

From there on it is one eventful episode after another as the unusual plan unfolds amid daring feats of action, suspense and intrigue. It's an exciting adventure film well presented in color. The performances are good, and the thrill-studded climax brings the absorbing tale to a fitting and explosive conclusion.

HOW TO TEACH DRAMA

Symposium Planned. The curtain will rise at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, April 5, on Carlo Goldoni's comedy, "The Servant of Two Masters," and the curtain-raising will signal the start of McCarter's second symposium of the year, "The Teaching of Drama."

Teachers, McCarter Guild members, subscribers and undergraduates at Princeton University may attend free of charge.

After lunch, those attending the symposium will gather in McCarter at 1:45 to hear a panel led by Albert Marek, ward of the University faculty, an expert in the field of education.

Daniel Seltzer, associate director of the Loeb Drama Center at Harvard, and Frederic O'Grady, director of the Goldoni play for McCarter, will also take part. The rest of the panel will be filled in shortly.

IT'S NEW To Us

VIBRATE!

Germaine Says To. When Germaine Moutell gets the bit in her lip, there's no stopping her. This spring, at Thorne's it's "Brilliant's" the new vibrant lipstick that are super-moist and full of Moutell high-frequency.

Four shades in these "Brilliant's": tangerine, a tropical orange; strawberry, a ripe pink; cherry, a blue-red and café, a nice spicy mocha for gals who want to look as though they were just back from coffee break.

Thorne suggests wearing a brilliant with Montell's Super-moist Lip Gloss, a clear stick tinted faintly with a blush of pink. Wear it over lipstick, or even wear it alone just to shine and soften the lips.

Moving along the Thorne counter, we find Houbigant so excited about "Bain Nouveau" that they're giving away a $3 gift of Bain Nouveau spray mist with every purchase over $3. This new line has a new member: a "Crème de Bain "Nouveau" with plunger dispenser for $4. Already in the line is a dusting powder and eau de toilette (both for $2.50), perfume oil for body and bath, and if we've left anything out, Thorne's will be glad to fill in.

Parfums Weil muscled in with free perfume ("Antelope") in you buy spray mist for $5. And Raphael of Paris presents his "Replique" in a 1.4 ounce spray mist for $3.50. Tale and dusting powder come in this line, too.

Coty comes right in with a $3 "L'Aimant" package for only $4. You get a free purse sprayer with the toilet water for the $4 price.

That happy shriek in Thorne's comes from teenagers around the Yardley counter. We still can't get over the juxta-position of Yardley and teen-agers; it's like seeing the Queen do the watusi.

Anyhow, as you know, Yardley is responsible for those irresistible Slickeringos — slicker lipsticks on a wild-stripe keychain for $1.50 single; $2.50 doubles. And for the toilet water called "Oh! de London."

Old ladies over 21 can buy Yardley's spray mist cologne at $1.95 for a $2.50 value just to commemorate spring. Comes in Lavender, Red Roses and April Violets — thought Yardley had lost its touch, didn't you? Rubinstein welcomes the season with Silk Sheen (a setting gel) and Silk Sheen protein shampoo. The Rubinstein special is a $2.75 shampoo for $1.75.

Another thing Thorne's is quivery about is the Pantene hair spray and lotion. You get free "Forming" solution (to firm and hold the hair) with every spray you buy. There's an average "Forming" for average hair, and a second formula for oily and fine hair. $3 for spray and "forming."

All of the Christian Dior nail products are on hand, if you'll pardon us, at Thorne's. Polish and remover and stuff to keep your nails from going brittle. No biting, now!

for a mosquito candle. Well, just thought we'd suggest it.
The cabbage dishes are echoes of a charming European custom for informal dining. The celery dish we're about to describe is pure pop art. It's a big green bunch of celery. That's all. Leave it carelessly around and somebody will put it in the crisper when you aren't looking. It matches, sort of, a six-inch plate covered with colossal stuffed green olives and a more conservative plate with radishes? Yes Radishes.

We mention all this because summer and patio dining are right around the next gin and tonic. Cummins is prepared with the coolest cool-drink glasses we've ever seen. They're clear high-ball glass with frosted lime slices tossed at random all around the sides. Refreshing even to wash them after the guests leave.
Those therm glasses are back again, in gold, olive, cranberry, aqua royal. Cummins has matched their solid colors to some art nouveau place mats in bright floral patterns.

And to complement them still more there are serving trays in brilliant solid colors. Impervious to guests and conveniently made in two sizes: an individual six-inch-long size, and a standard serving size, and the gayest, brightest colors!

If you're going to be indoors awhile, Cummins hopes you will use the unusual Norwegian pewter pieces, fashioned with a strong Viking masculinity which makes them ideal for a man's study or office. They are the usual necessary pieces, done in silver pewter with very dark grey inlay serving as the background for kunic figures and ancient nail-head designs. When is his birthday?

LIKE FLOWERS?

Then Sew Some. From the little bitty flowers on the canvas prints (make a Villager suit from Simplicity's pattern) to the wild blue roses on the rayon. The Fabric Shop on Chambers Street is one great big new spring garden.
Like the idea of those canvas prints? One is a good awning stripe in red-white-blue, but the others are all posies, bright or pastel, in tiny little flowers.

In the rayon, there is also a nice white with purple blue paisley commas far and wide over its creamy surface. A Fusch-style print has random rectangles full of lunatic scroll designs.

One of The Fabric Shop's proudest acquisitions is Klopman's "Trigger," a steel blue permanently pressed cotton, blended with dacron. With your yardage, you get the special sewing instructions Klopman has worked out for home seamstresses to follow in using this new fabric. Want the challenge?

Just in the brink of time. Fabric suggests spring woals in pink, bright rose, powder blue, lemon, hutter—well you know how spring goes with woollens. Better start sewing these right now.

For later there are dacron and cotton voiles with little old-fashioned dots on turquoise, orange or navy. Make a long-sleeved sheer dress, why not?

Who Killed Cock Robin?

Birds, birds, birds. . . . that's all you see on the narrow tier of shelves toward the back of the Cummins Shop.

From Brussels, comes a tall coffee pitcher and matching coffee cups, big and straight and tall, each one decorated with a lovingly painted bird and his bough. Dessert plates, cream and sugar match, each one bright with bluebird or redbird.

From Japan, there are demi-tasses in porcelain, again with a cheerful bird painted on each cup and saucer ($1.25 each). Higher on the shelves are those splendid bisque statuettes of birds, so lifelike in the delineation of a quail's head, a pheasant's ring or the turn of a dove's head that you expect a feather to ruffle at any moment.

But they're sly at The Cummins Shop. . . sly. Because right in the middle of this charming aviary is . . . a chop-licking cat, flat-faced and inscrutable, (with a slot in his back for coins . . . or bluebirds?

Your summer suit will be rayon linen print, perhaps the dark clothed one in olive greens against pale blue, or the cheerful fellow with hard-edge blooms in pink, purple or lime against bronze.

For country wear, your summer suit can be pastel quilted cotton. Bright-eyed little pink flowers, maybe, or the little blue paisley.

Crinkle cotton, sheer and cool, with the crinkle pressed in, comes in pastel paisleys. Crinkle cotton, firmer and heavier with the crinkle woven in, comes in tomorrow's paisley, marked with yellows and greys, or hot lime and orange in sweeping curves around blue-pink geometric clusters.

Fierce terry, in blues! pinks! limes! will dry you off in a hot wink of hot pink.

By Archimedes (Bernard)

WIG FACTS III

The frequency of cleaning required by a wig depends upon how often it is worn, excessive spraying (although a wig properly cleaned and set needs little or no spraying after the first spraying).

If it is worn constantly, a wig may require cleaning every four to six weeks; less often if only worn occasionally. The better quality of hair in the wig, the longer the set will last.

A wig set will last much longer than a woman's own hair set since it is unaffected by her natural scalp oils. She also doesn't sleep in her wig. Wigs are absolutely marvelous. After you have worn your first wig, you'll wonder how you ever managed to be without one before.

company in the benefit performance.

Mrs. Brunner chose the Vivaldi duo-violin concerto after listening to a great deal of music, chiefly Baroque, which could be used for "a storyless ballet... a ballet in which we would find dance for its own sake and which would grow out of the music... desire life from the music, and yet complement it."

The choreographer came to Princeton in 1960 after a career as soloist with the American National Ballet Theatre, dancer in Broadway musicals, and a member of the New York City Ballet under the direction of George Balanchine.

In Princeton, she is known to audiences as the choreographer for "The Nutcracker Suite."

PROGRAM IS VARIED

For Joffrey Dancers. An anti-war ballet first composed in 1932 will share the program with a sparkling "Cakewalk" and a tribute to Vivaldi when the City Center Joffrey Ballet plays McCarter on Sunday, April 9, for a 3 p.m. matinee.

Kurt Jooss' "The Green Table: Danse Macabre in Eight Scenes, created between two wars as a memorial for the Unknown," was composed in 1932, and the Joffrey production will feature costumes and masks based on the 1932 Heinrich Heckroth designs.

This will be the first production of the ballet ever mounted by an American company. Michael Uthoff, who will dance the role of the Standard Bearer, is the son of Ernest Uthoff, who danced the same role in the original production.

The "Cakewalk" has been choreographed by Ruthanna Boris to Hershey Kay's music. Gerald Arpino's "Viva Vivaldi" was given here last year by the Joffrey company.

Tickets for this, the final event in the current season's dance series, may be purchased at the McCarter box-office or reserved by calling 921-8700.

showing such loading areas together with a new application must be presented.

The latest impasse between the Board and A&P was triggered when Zoning Officer Joseph Shinn refused to approve A&P plans because they showed loading and unloading doors facing Terhone. Last June, A&P was granted a land-to-area ratio variance which was contingent on several conditions covering parking, traffic flow, screening and so on. One involved loading areas.

Last week, in asking for an interpretation of Mr. Shinn's ruling, Theodore T. Tams Jr., attorney for A&P, insisted that original plans had clearly shown loading areas on the north side and that A&P had complied with all conditions set by the board. "That's why we're baffled," he said.

Not so, replied the board. In its decision, it said, "An examination of the plans submitted does not reveal anything specifically labeled 'loading facilities' or 'loading dock' on the north or Terhone side of the proposed store, but rather the size of the doors shown and other details indicate the contrary. "It is the unanimous recollection of the Board members present at the June 16 meet-

THE TOUGH APPROACH achieved an independent Israel, former prime minister David Ben-Gurion told President Robert F. Goheen on Thursday, illustrating his point with a little body English. The long-time Zionist leader came to Princeton to speak at the Woodrow Wilson School on Israel's past and future. (George Peterson Photo)

The ruling continued, that approval was conditioned and relief granted based upon representation, made that all loading was to be confined to the rear and east side of the proposed store.

Hospital Must Wait. Action on Princeton Hospital's application for a special permit in connection with its plans to expand its Medical Arts Building was tabled for one month. Board Chairman Russell Van Cleave said there were technical and legal problems involved and the board needed more time for study.

Objections to the plans came from long-time opponents of the hospital, Mr. and Mrs. Sergio Bonotto, 72 Henry Avenue. Mr. Bonotto said the hospital was "drifting variance by variance into a regional hospital."

"It is not inevitable that Princeton Hospital become a regional hospital," he added. He suggested that the hospital channel its resources to aid in the development of other hospitals in the area.

Another objector, James Driver, 143 Jefferson Road, who obviously had done his homework, shot out figures with machine gun rapidity showing, in essence, that the hospital was guilty of high-packing density in a residential zone. He reported that figures for the three lots in question, R-1, R-6 and B-1 "net out" to a 177% density ratio in comparison to a limit of 20% for an individual in the Township. "I think these comparison ratios are interesting," he commented.

In other action, the Antlers Sportsmen Club was given a special permit for use of skeet and trap shooting on four lots it leases off Herrantown Road.

Conditions laid down by the board stipulated that trap and skeet loads be limited to standard loads, that the activities of the club be controlled and policed as represented by the applicant, and that use of the club area be limited to club members and their guests.

The permit was granted for one year only. This has been a condition sought by Thomas Cook, counsel for the Township Open Space Commission, which has obtained use of the Autumn Hill Reservation, which borders the Antlers Range, as a wild life refuge. "The board can see this is quite opposite the use of that of the applicant," he said.

Church Approved. The application by the Princeton Church of Christ for a special permit to remodel a 20-year-old, two-story masonry home at 63 Van Dyke Road for use as a church and administration office was granted, but with conditions.

The church must erect adequate screening between the parking area and Van Dyke Road, church membership, currently placed between 75-86 by Ervyn E. Boothe, the church's minister, must not exceed 200; the special per-

than the VW station wagon.

More gas, more oil, more anti-freeze, more money.

The VW Station Wagon is like a real bus. It gives you more room where it counts.

The ordinary station wagon gives you more room where it adds up.

Like in the gas tank. The ordinary wagon holds twice as much gas as the VW.

And it needs every drop. It only gets about 14 mpg while the VW gets 23.

Other station wagons hold oil in quarts while the VW gets along on pints.

And in the winter, the ordinary wagon takes 100% more anti-freeze.

The air-cooled VW engine never needs any. (In the winter, all it takes to get it going is a turn of the key.)

So in the end the ordinary wagon takes more of one more thing. Money, to fill it up with more gas, oil and anti-freeze.

Sure, the ordinary station wagon has twice as much room as the VW for all of these things.

And that's one good reason why it has about twice as less for everything else.

Hydrants to Be Cleaned

If Princeton homes are bothered by brief periods of low water pressure or discolored water in the next month, the reason will be the spring cleaning of Borough and Township fire-hydrants.

The project is designed to insure that all hydrants are in working order. Flushing and pressure tests will be made by the Princeton Water Co.

question of increased traffic he said, "I don't think the church should be blamed for the sins of others." He added the church would put less demands on any sanitary system than an average family.

The TIA Electric Company, 178 Alexander Street, a manufacturer of small electronic devices and a division of Heilmann Electric Company, Trenton, was granted a continuation of the use variance it had originally received in 1962, one which had subsequently been extended in 1963 and '65. This latest extension granted by the board will run through July, 1969.

Housed in one building, TIA presently has seven employees and parking for 22 cars. C. L. Sonnenschein, TIA president, testified that he anticipated no changes in the firm's operation.

Fraok Cuomo Sr., 25 Henry Avenue, was granted area, width, frontage, rear yard, front yard, and floor area ratio variances in order to construct a house on a lot at 88 Erdman Avenue.

Frank J. Cuomo Jr., 419 Franklin Avenue, who represented his father, told the board the lot was the only one remaining in the area, which is presently zoned for half-acre lots. The Board, in granting the variance, stipulated that Mr. Cuomo erect suitable screening between his property and adjacent property on Erdman Ave.

Harry H. Williams Jr. was granted frontage and yard-height variances to permit him to build a second floor addition on a structure at 635 Snowden Lane. The original structure, a one-story home owned by James Shriver III, had burned last year and only the walls remained.

The board's approval was contingent on Mr. Williams' eliminating a second-floor bedroom window that faced the property of Frank M. Reeder, Herrontown Circle. Mr. Reeder had told the board that he objected to the height of the proposed addition because it would allow people to see into his living room and rear yard and would violate his privacy.

HOSPITAL TO APPEAL

To Borough Zoning Board. Princeton Hospital, which has plans to expand its Medical Arts Building, will appear before the Borough Zoning Board Thursday night in its quest for a special permit and variances that it needs before construction can begin.

Last week, the Hospital appeared before the Township Zoning Board for the same reason, since the Borough-Township boundary line cuts right through the Medical Arts Building. On Monday, the Township zoners voted to table for one month the hospital's application, saying they wanted more time to study the technical points involved.

In a second case to appear before the Borough Zoning Board, the Women's Auxiliary of Princeton will apply for a special permit for a club use in a residential zone. The Auxiliary would like to transfer its fund-collecting facilities to a two-story family home at 56 William Street.

Last week, Town Topics reported that John J. Tufano, 29 Maclean Street, was fined for leaving the scene of an accident. That charge was later changed to careless driving, for which Mr. Tufano, 18, paid $15. He was represented by Seymour Montgomery.

CRUSADE TO START

Against Cancer. Some 400 Princeton volunteers will assist this year's drive to raise funds for the American Cancer Society. The national campaign hopes to raise $15,000,000 for cancer research and cancer education.

Chairman of the 1967 Princeton Cancer Crusade is Richard Dahl, Director of Essential Planning Associates. He has announced April 1 as the start of the soliciting campaign.

CLOTHING IS STOLEN

From Parked Car, Club. Clothing was reported stolen last week from Dial Lodge on Prospect Avenue and from a car parked in the lot at University Place and Edwards Place.

William Jones, a member of Dial, told police on Friday that two suits and a blazer valued at $185 and a $25 electric razor had been taken from a third-floor closet. Sunday at 11 p.m., Miss Suzanne Jones of Columbus, reported that her car had been entered and ransacked. Police said a side vent window had been forced.

Taken, Miss Jones said, were a tan, mink-collared coat, a cotton suit, dress and blouse which she valued at $130. She added that assorted women's clothing worth $58, belonging to a companion from Cleveland, had also been taken from her car.

Mrs. Edward Clohossey, 479 Jefferson Road, listed the theft of a $65 car radio from her station wagon which had been parked in front of her father's home, 64 Pine Street. She discovered the theft when she left at 9:15 Saturday night.

In a report made Monday, Harold Novick of Haverhill, Mass., told Borough police that his wife's $150 bracelet was stolen in February while they were guests of the Princeton Inn.

THEY WENT THATAWAY

Burglars Nabbed Quickly. Three men whom police said took some $10,000 worth of household articles, furs and jewelry from the home of Dr. and Mrs. James Millier 22 Arcton Road, were arrested on Tuesday less than an hour after the theft.

The trio was spotted by a Nassau Oil Co. repairman, working at another home nearby. After calling Township police, he followed the men.

Other Nassau Oil Co. trucks, spread out in the Route 206 area almost as if in a prepared network, kept police informed of the direction the wanted automobile had taken.

The arrest was made on South Main Street, Manville, about 12 miles from Princeton. The three men had been unaware of the chase and were taken wholly by surprise when informed that their actions had been under complete surveillance.

Police identified the men as Harvey L. Norris, 26; John H. Gilliam, 29, both of New Brunswick and Charles A. Lincoln, 21, of Somerset. Arrangement was scheduled for Wednesday in Township court.

HE SEES WITH HIS EARS
In Sighted Experiment. When Gerard J. Verney insisted on taking part in the laboratory experiments in his physics course at Princeton University, he created a problem for his instructor, Dr. Thomas R. Carver. Mr. Verney, a 20-year old sophomore, has been blind since the age of three.

Dr. Carver discovered that the University had no special equipment for teaching blind students. He found himself with two possible choices; he could devise special experiments that did not need sight or he could invent some instrument that would compensate for his student's blindness.

He chose to invent a sort of electric eye for the blind student. Using a photoelectric cell like the one used to open and shut doors, and spare parts that he found in Princeton laboratory closets, Dr. Carver created a tool that translates light into sound.

Called a light-sensor, the device is a pen-sized aluminum and Bakelite tube that weighs a little more than three ounces. A lens directs external nal light in the photoelectric cell converts the light into electric charges.

III-FI. These electrical charges are then converted to sound and broadcast by a small speaker at the end of the tube. By listening to the pitch of the sound, Mr. Verney can tell whether an object in front of him is light or dark.

Dr. Carver observed that the idea for such a device is not new since blind switchboard operators have used similar tools. The novelty of his version is its flexibility, its compact size, and its application to the classroom situation.

With the light sensor, Mr. Verney can find the fluid level in a test tube. A dab of white paint on a moving object reveals the motion of the object by producing a change in tone each time the paint passes the sensor. He also uses it in his room to check on the operation of his tape recorder.

Dr. Carver explained that, although many uses still remained to be found for the device, it would not be helpful as an aid to general guidance. It has no depth perception and cannot tell the difference between a shadow and a bicycle lying on the sidewalk.

Trim, Neat, Expensive. Dr. Carver and an assistant, James G. Smith spent some 100 hours in developing the present model. Three earlier versions were discarded as too bulky.

Total cost of the device was about $500 although parts for the present model cost little more than $22. Dr. Carver is hopeful that similar instruments can be produced easily and cheaply for thousands of blind students who are handicapped in laboratory sciences.

The assistant physics professor made further sacrifices of research time devoted to the study of the energy level of atoms when he invented another special device for Mr. Verney. This one is a Lucite graph board.

A sheet of Lucite plastic was etched with tiny lines like graph paper. When a piece of paper is placed over the Lucite, Mr. Verney can feel the scored lines for graph-plotting.

plans other than Princeton Hospital. The firms were concerned because there was no effective program to provide blood services to these employees.

Plans Completed. Using these survey figures, the Service Managers Group presented this problem to the Princeton Red Cross and the Princeton Personnel Association. Plans were drawn up for a program offering to protect the employees of any firm that wishes to participate and also active donors in the Princeton Blood Donor Service when they are hospitalized in places other than Princeton.

Membership in the Group Plan has been offered initially to firms belonging to either the Princeton Personnel Association or the area Service Managers group. Of 36 eligible firms, 29 firms, representing a total employment of about 10,000, agreed to become members.

Each firm will have its own blood chairman who will be responsible for donor recruitment. To provide total blood coverage, employers estimate that some 20% of their employees must contribute at the annual visit of the bloodmobile.

The Princeton Red Cross is training volunteers to staff these bloodmobile visits. At the first course, 46 volunteers including 10 Registered Nurses were instructed in the duties of a Blood Program Aide. The medical aspects of the blood donation will be handled by the staff nurses of the New York-New Jersey Red Cross Blood Center.

If the program is successful, coverage will be extended to less closely related relatives of donors, and more Princeton firms will be asked if they want to join. If a participating firm drops far below the 20% donation level, it will probably be dropped from the program.

Bloodmobile visits will be made on a monthly basis at a different company each month. Three firms are combined on Thursday's visit. Educational Testing Service, Western Electric and Mobile Oil Company. Each company will try to schedule donors who are not regularly users of Princeton Hospital. The next visit will be April 21 at American Cyanamid Agricultural Center, Shell Chemical Company and Union Camp Corporation will also contribute at that time.

FARRINGTON TO RUN
Makes Formal Announcement. Democratic Assemblyman Charles E. Farrington confirmed all the rumors this week and announced formally that he will run for the second state senate seat allotted to Mercer County under the new apportionment plan. Mr. Farrington, who mainains his law office at 188 Nassau, said he will run in the Democratic primary on June 6 and in the general election "against anyone who feels he will make a better colleague of Senator (Sid L.) Ridolfi than I."

Mercer County Freeholder Richard J. Coffee has been mentioned as a possible contender against Mr. Farrington in the Democratic primaries. In his statement, Mr. Farrington said "my ten years of hard and faithful work and very broad experience in the

Mr. Farrington also spoke of his chairmanship on various legislative committees and "my cooperation with two fine Democratic governors and Senator Ridolfi and my loyalty to the Democratic party."

Commenting on opposition he might encounter in the primary, Mr. Farrington said "I suggest that, considering the lack of legislative experience on the part of any other person mentioned, it is I who am being opposed in my candidacy for the Senate, a natural and logical step from the General Assembly."

SEVERAL ARE INJURED

In Auto Accidents, Traffic accidents in the Township and Borough last week brought injury to drivers, passengers and pedestrians.

Harvey R. Wilson, 64, 110 Leight Avenue, was taken to Princeton Hospital by the First Aid and Rescue Squad, treated and released for a bloody nose, following an accident early Sunday on Mercer Road near Maxwell Lane.

Mr. Wilson told Township Ptl. Anthony Gaylord that he had applied his brakes after noticing a Borough patrol car stopped on the side of the road. His car, instead of stopping straight, skidded across the road into the path of a car operated by Hans M. Courial, 29, of Wrightstown. There were no charges. Police said the Borough patrol car had pulled over another car for speeding.

Two 19-year-old drivers from Pennsylvania were involved in a head-on collision at 12:32 Saturday morning on the Mercer Road Bridge. Both cars were towed away.

Ptl. Gaylord charged Thomas C. Early Jr., of Pequannock with failing to keep right. Mr. Early told the police he tried to turn to the right to avoid hitting a car driven by John S. Walter of Chalfont but he did not have time.

A passenger in the Walter car, Judy Despenza, 20, of Bogota was taken to Princeton Hospital by the First Aid Squad for treatment of lacerations of the left eye and bruises.

The most unusual accident happened Saturday morning on private property, to Daisy J. Woolridge, 65, 194 Birch Avenue.

Mrs. Woolridge, who rents a garage at 11 Race Street, had backed her car out of the garage, got out to close the garage door, and attempted to re-enter her car. As she did so, her arm knocked the gear shift lever from park into reverse.

Her car shot backward. Its door, still opened, knocked Mrs. Woolridge to the ground. It continued on across Race Street, glanced off a tree, and struck a garage owned by Olin McGowan, 12 Race. The impact buckled the center post and the overhead garagedoor collapsed on two cars inside.

Mrs. Woolridge received a bruised knee and elbow. Sgt. Lester Anderson made no charges.

Broken Ribs, Collarbone

Most severely injured last week was Clarence C. Lund, 66, 54 Cuyler Road. As a result of an intersection crash at Jefferson and Terhune Roads late Thursday afternoon, Mr. Lund received three fractured ribs. His collarbone was broken in three places.

Two 10-year-old girls in Mr. Lund's car sustained minor injuries — Patricia Casserly, 54 Cuyler, Mr. Lund's granddaughter, and Maureen McGrath, 89 Dempsey Avenue.

Ptl. Frank Boccanfuso of the Township police, said that Eugene Cypress, 19, Cranbury, driving a car owned by Opinion Research Corporation, failed to observe a stop sign on Terhune. His car came to rest against a tree after the impact. Mr. Lund's car was pushed onto the property of Robert McQuade, 327 Jefferson. Both cars were towed away.

Donna J. Sohn, 38, Pretty Brook Road, was taken to Princeton Hospital for observation of back pains she received when her panel truck was struck by a car on Pretty Brook road at 7:18 Thursday morning.

John Cocciolillo, 68, 150 Washington Street, Rocky Hill, told Ptl. Gaylord he was rounding a curve when his car started to skid. His car caught the Sohn truck on the rear fender.

Earlier in the week, William M. Brown, 3, 67 Clay Street, received a contusion of his left leg, after he was struck by a car driven by Pamela S. Sams, 26, 152 Nassau Street. Ptl. Boccanfuso, the investigating officer, said the youth was one of a group of boys that had been running from a dog and he had darted into the path of the car. He made no charges.

The incident happened on Leigh Avenue.

Borough, Too. In the Borough, Patricia L. Le Bon, 22, Van Dyke Road, Hopewell, was taken Thursday in a patrol car to Princeton Hospital

RELATIONS MORE IMPORTANT THAN INDIVIDUAL: In commenting on the government's refusal to grant asylum to Stalin's daughter Edward Callahan says, "the relations we are trying to build with Russia . . . are more important." (Staff Photo)

Question of the Week

Question: Was it contrary to the principles on which this country was founded for the government to deny asylum to Stalin's daughter?

Where asked: Palmer Square.

Edward Callahan, Philadelphia, sales manager for Cregar Motors, State Road; I think in a sense it may be contrary to our principles, but I also feel in practical politics we have to be flexible and consider as number one the relations we are trying to build with Russia. I think that is more important than Stalin's daughter.

Miss Beatrice White, 301 Franklin Avenue, administrative assistant; No, I don't think it was; I think it was the smartest thing we've done in years. It's more important to maintain relations with Russia than it is to give her asylum. With the world situation the way it is—everything is so shaky—I believe we need to retain good relations with Russia.

Norman Agin, Princeton Junction, consultant for MATHEMATICA; No, not at all! The principles of the government have always been to follow the law, and in this case the law permits the political arm of the government to decide what is best. The law says the government has the right to exclude anybody it doesn't want.

Roskwick Wyman, 293 Nassau Street, mathematics department, Princeton University; Yes, I feel it was contrary to the principles on which this country was founded. I, more or less, believe that anyone who requests entry to this country should be welcome. There are obvious exceptions. For example, we don't want any criminals but certainly Svetlana Stalin is not an exception.

Miss Gene Harmon, 11 Greenview Avenue; administrative assistant, Way Associates; I think the matter is relative. Certainly, we've spent a good number of years being enemies with Russia when there must be some basis on which we can reach an understanding. Now that we are as close to it as we are I think we should do nothing that would jeopardize that relationship. But, if in the future, she still wants asylum here, I think we should grant it when it is no longer a sensitive issue.

Claude Raymond, New Hope, Pa., specifications writer; Yes, I do. I feel its decision was based on expediency and not on principle. It's an unfortunate thing.

Miss E. A. Morton, Highland Park, employee, TTT Data Service, 53 Bank Street; Yes, I think it was, because this country was founded on a free democracy—opportunity for everyone regardless of race, color or creed. This nation has given asylum to other people, including Russian flyers and soldiers from the East Berlin zone. I don't see why they don't treat her just as another human being. She has no political influence. If she were going to try to carry on her father's policies, I could see the point but she is just another human being who wants to be left alone in peace. Why single her out just because she is Stalin's daughter? Frankly, this country is too big to have these little dilly dallies. We have other, more pressing problems.

Dom Campisi, Graduate College, Woodrow Wilson School; It's hard to say. I suppose if you limit it to the objective principles on the Statue of Liberty, it would seem incongruous to refuse her entry. But if you look at the actual patterns of entry, under the Walter McCarran Immigration Act, which was recently repealed, people were denied entry on the basis of race and national origin. I think the government has always had discretion with political figures, whether to allow them entry. Refusing Stalin's daughter isn't out of historical pattern. She's not emigrating in the sense of the Irish or the Pilgrims. She's a political figure and political questions enter into it.

Mrs. Helena Palmer, Princeton. It depends upon how involved she is in the former political policies of her father. If she were opposed to the bad he did, she would be welcome but if she agrees with her father I don't think she'd be happy here.

James Dill, 29 Edwards Place, architect's draftsman; No, I think it's all right. After all, we have immigration quotas.

If she wants to apply for entry as an immigrant, there are certain procedures she must follow. I feel the government has the right to restrict entry to certain people.

Miss Bonnie Davis, 25 Vandewater Avenue, graduate student, Rutgers; I feel it was contrary. I think we should have let her come in. I can understand the reason behind the government's decision—our relations with Russia are precarious—but I still would have preferred giving her asylum, the principles on which this country was founded being what they are.

DeWitt Boice, 20 Adams Drive, owner of Boice Lumber Co.; I feel since we live in a democracy, we ought not to deny the right of living in this country to anyone who has a just cause to seek asylum. I don't see where this would have any effect on Russia—a minor effect, perhaps, but they would get over it. There are a lot more critical problems which confront this government in its relations with Russia today.

Joint Board of Health Urged.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

In light of the recent exposure of flagrant housing violations being allowed to accumulate at 52 Birch Avenue, Princeton and the problems of landlords, tenants and Boards of Health, it seems timely to suggest that a serious discussion be undertaken on the implementation of the 1963 Dilley Report recommendation that a Joint Board of Health be created.

Now is the time to look at the rights and responsibilities of both landlord and tenant and the functions of a Joint Board of Health. Since there are a number of Princeton citizens interested in this subject, I would suggest that the discussions be open to the public.

GERALDINE L. BOONE

"Doves Aid the Enemy."

To the Editor of Town Topics:
I read with increasing concern of the actions of a small group of Princeton Professors joined by other small groups in other places who have for some time been attempting to convince the administration and the bulk of the American people of the error of our ways in Vietnam. They have bought full page ads in great newspapers, held public meetings, and in many other ways have given the widest publicity to their opinions. In spite of all this, Gallup reports as of February 23, 67% of Americans favor continuation of the bombing.

Does it occur to this group that we have listened, we have considered and we have rejected their opinions? As of now almost no one in America is listening any more. They are talking to themselves.

But someone is listening. The Viet Cong and Ho Chi Minh are reported to be listening avidly and basing their futile hopes on this tiny group's noisy propaganda. Thus these efforts are producing just the opposite result of that intended.

I have a counter proposal for the Anti-Government organizations who seriously want to stop the war. Declare an unconditional halt to your "bombing" of the administration. Join with the vast majority of your countrymen in providing a united front in an attempt to convince the other side that negotiation through mutual concessions is the only road to peace. Continue this for as long as you would ask the Government to stop our half of the war and then let us see whether in our complete unity we can achieve the peace we all want.

After all, if the other side still continues to be intractable, you can dust off the placards again.

ROBERT J. LEVINE

28 Linwood Circle

They Let George Do It.

To the Editor of Town Topics:
Many people went to the meeting of the new Princeton Community Democratic Organization with the hope of participating in a reform movement.

After paying dues and listening to speeches they were told they could vote for officers and the executive board. Only there was nothing to vote for. A full slate of officers had been prepared in advance. Nominations from the floor were perfunctorily invited, but not encouraged.

The remainder of the meeting was devoted to the problem of whether or not to back some of the "older" organization's candidates for committeemen from the Borough. Even though a motion to leave that up to a special committee plus the officers was defeated, those people who came to participate in the end decided to "let George do it." The hour was late. They left it up to the officers.

Maybe this is what was wrong with the old organization, and is symptomatic of the malaise which seems, increasingly, to beset the party on the state and national levels. Let's hope the idealism which produced the large turnout for this first meeting is not lost, and that the new organization seeks out and supports progressive candidates in both the Borough and the Township. If we are to have a real grass roots movement in Princeton, perhaps we had better have a little more respect for the grass roots.

MUSIC In Princeton

'BEAUTIFUL MUSIC'

By Quartetto Italiano. Princeton concertgoers have enjoyed through the years many fine chamber groups either at 10 McCosh Hall or at McCarter Theatre. Each group usually brings to its performance its own concept of tonal quality, and this we identify as the trademark of that particular ensemble.

On Monday night, the Quartetto Italiano presented its first Princeton concert as part of a United States tour now in progress. The program consisted of Mozart's "Hunt" Quartet; Beethoven's Quartet No. 11 in F Minor, Opus 65, sometimes referred to as the "Serioso" and the Debussy Quartet in G Minor, Opus 10.

If the listener preferred a vigorous approach to this music, he would have been most disappointed. On the other hand, if one can accept a variety of approaches to a given piece of music, then the concertgoer would have particularly enjoyed the sensitivity, tone color, rhythmic precision and impeccable intonation which the Quartetto Italiano brought to their performances.

As individual performers, each member (with the exception of the violinist), seems to lack a full-bodied tone. In fact, it is obvious that they as soloists prefer a lean, almost detached sound; but quartets are not judged on the individual's tone quality alone, and if the sum of its parts is the true measure of a chamber group's effectiveness, then the Quartetto Italiano left an indelible impression on this listener as possessing a most mellow and warm sound.

Returning to their rhythmic coordination for a moment, it is sufficient to say that such clarity and accuracy in execution in fast unison passages, ritards and accelerandos is seldom encountered in today's concert halls. Usually even the better of these groups impress the audience as if they were playing too fast; (i.e., rushing). Not so, the Quartetto Italiano!

In performing the Debussy Quartet, which turned out to be the highlight of the evening, they played this tender, emotional score with great affection and virtuosity. One might have wished here and there for more "expressivo" from the first violin or cello, but again the total beauty of the ensemble's tone color, so important to the style and texture of this music, more than made up for any deficiency in the sound of a single instrument.

It must be noted however that the violinist demonstrated a magnificent tone during his solos in the third movement. Perhaps this is the key to the quartet's success as a performing entity; the viola sound emanating from within the fabric of the other three. As an encore, the Quartet performed, entirely, the viola Dvorak's "American" Quartet. The spritely movement created just the right atmosphere to conclude a most satisfying evening of beautiful music.

There are more than 700 species of poisonous plants that grow in homes, in backyards, and in fields!

It is one thing to advise parents to lock up their prescription drugs, headache pills, and tincture of iodine in the medicine chest. But, where can one hide a poinsettia plant?
Yet, one leaf of this common house plant contains enough poison to kill a child.

It is easy enough to educate the public to keep disinfectants, bleaches, and rat poisons where children cannot get at them. But, where does one lock up the rho-dodendron bush in the back yard? The leaves, stems, and other parts of this shrub can be fatal if they are chewed.

Children are especially prone to poisoning from poisonous berries.
Even certain parts of edible plants have also been responsible for numerous poisonings: rhubarb leaves (not the stalks which are commonly used in baking and cooking), peach tree leaves, twigs of cherry trees; even the foliage and vines of ordinary plants such as potatoes and tomatoes.

Watch your small child when he is outdoors. Children less than 5 years of age are in the learning process. They learn by exploring their environment.
What they see, they try to reach, and what they reach,
they put into their mouths.
They are completely dependent upon adults for protection. So be aware of these potential dangers.

Value in a carpet or rug depends on price in relation to performance.

A low price for poor quality is no bargain!

The cost of a carpet reflects many factors, construction as well as fiber content and appearance. Two carpets can be made of the same fiber and, at first glance, have a similar appearance — but different price tags. In comparing carpets made of the same fiber, remember the rule on quality: "The deeper, the denser, the better."

Unusual styling may add slightly to the cost of a carpet, but today a wide range of style is available in all price ranges. Handsome colors and textures generally cost no more. (If you want a very unusual color, many carpets today can be custom-dyed to your specifications, usually at a moderate extra cost per square yard.)

To judge price properly, consider the years of expected wear, compared to the price. If one carpet costs $5 a square yard, and will wear about two years, the carpet will cost $2.50 per square yard per year. Another carpet costing $10 per square yard, but lasting 10 years, will cost only $1 per square yard per year! The more "expensive" carpet is actually the greater bargain.

The wear life of a carpet will, vary, according to use and proper care, but you can estimate the expected life of a carpet by measuring traffic against quality. Remember — top grades in high-traffic areas, medium grades in normal traffic areas and lesser grades for limited use.

NEW FLIGHTS ANNOUNCED
Reductions, Too, By Airport.
The introduction of flights to Washington, D. C. and a reduction of fares to New York have been announced by Webster B. Todd Jr., president of Princeton Aviation Corporation.

The major schedule change and fare reduction are part of Princeton Airport's endeavor to increase its service to the travelers and businessmen of the greater Princeton community, Mr. Todd said.

Flights to Washington will begin April 3, with two daily, leaving Princeton at 7:30 in the morning and at 3:30 in the afternoon. Air time to the nation's capital is 60 minutes. The afternoon flight from Princeton and the return flight from Washington to Princeton at 9 a.m. will also touch down at Baltimore's Friendship International Airport.

Concurrently, the Airport has revised its schedule to New York to include several non-stop flights to Kennedy International Airport — together with a reduction in fare. Flights from Princeton to Newark Airport now cost $45 one way, a reduction of $6; flights to Kennedy cost $18, a saving of $3. The new fares will become effective April 1. The increase in service is a reflection of the rapid growth of the Princeton Airport since the construction of its new runway and air terminal two years ago. Further developments are planned for the future, according to business manager Peter Hines.

25-AND-3 A FINE RECORD
Despite Loss to Tarheels.
No team that exceeds the hopes held for it at the outset of the season need be downcast over its elimination two steps away from a shot at the national title. Despite Friday's 78-70 overtime loss to North Carolina in the eastern regional semifinals at College Park, Md., Princeton's basketball team accomplished considerably more than seemed within its reach when the long, pressure-packed 16-week season began early in December.

No more than an even bet with Cornell to win the Ivy title, the Tigers dominated the race to the extent that they won by two games and equaled the best mark (13-1) set by any team in regular season play since the 14-game round-robin schedule was instituted 14 years ago.

By early January, their 9-1 record, including ability to beat such teams as Army, Villanova, Davidson and North Carolina on their own courts, brought them the first national ranking ever accorded an Ivy League team. They finished the season a solid fifth in both polls.

Their 25-and-3 record represents the largest number of games ever won in the sport at Princeton. Most impressive of all is the fact that they defeated two North Carolina and Cornell of the three teams which beat them, so that only second-ranked Louisville proved superior to them in the course of 28 contests.

The 1-6 Rubeysman. While all sorts of hypotheses may be posed after a defeat, it is possible that the Tigers would have had a better shot at reaching the national semifinals at Louisville if the Ivy League and the NCAA had not become embroiled in the controversial 16 regulation. When the rubairb was still flourishing well into the new year, the NCAA changed its original backtracking for the first and second-round elimination games in a way that made it tougher for the Tigers.

The switch sent an eastern at-large team (which turned out to be Princeton after it won the Ivy title) against the Southern Conference champion in the first game and the Atlantic Coast Conference champion in the second game. Originally, however, the Ivy champion, normally an automatic NCAA representative, was to meet the Yankee Conference winner in the first round and in the second, the survivor of the game between the Middle Atlantic Conference winner and an eastern at-large team.

ZONE DEFENSE GANGS UP ON ROBBERY BROWN: North Carolina alternated between a man-to-man defense and a zone Friday to combat Princeton's normally high shooting percentage. Here, three Tarheels (white uniforms) gang up on Robby Brown, Tigers' outscored North Carolina from the floor, 30 to 22, but lost at the foul line after game went into overtime, 78-70. (TOWN TOPICS Photo by George Peterson)

Such a pairing would have sent the Tigers against Connecticut, an easier foe than West Virginia, and, as matters turned out, Boston College, last Friday night. Presuming a North Carolina victory over St. John's that same evening, the Tigers would have played the Tarheels Saturday—much the preferable sequence from their point of view.

Another hypothesis which will long be remembered as part of the 1967 NCAA Tourney: Would Princeton have beaten North Carolina, 63-62, in regulation time if a costly technical foul had not been called on Coach Bill van Breda Kolff?

The ruling came toward the end of the first half, costing the Tigers possession and a point when the free throw was converted. There are those who insist that such a development relatively early in the game does not have a major bearing on the outcome, that North Carolina's own actions in the closing minute would have been somewhat different had its lead been a point less. Others will never believe, however, that Joe Heiser's running jump with 16 seconds left would not have brought Princeton from behind for a 63-62 victory, relegating the thorough defeat it absorbed in overtime to a nightmare that would never even have made it to the drawing board.

Paar, Pressure Tell, Hobbled by John Harlow's total ineffectiveness because of his ankle sprain the made 26 points against North Carolina in the first game, none in the first 40 minutes last Friday, the Tigers showed the pressure of the long months of basketball more than had been anticipated. They shot a mediocre 35% from the floor (in contrast to a season long average of 51% and an eye-pepping 65% at North Carolina in January). They were even worse, relatively speaking, from the foul line.

For the first time this year, they were below 50% there 10 for 21) and because they committed so many more personal, the Tarheels won when they sank 32 of 43—including 11 straight in overtime. Chris Thomforde, in foul trouble early, Gary Walters and Dave Lawyer all wound up on the bench with five apiece.

The losers never led after the first five minutes, but were only down by one (29-28) at the half. Twice in the final round they battled back from six-point deficits, eventually closing the gap by scoring 10 points in the final three and a half minutes while holding the Tarheels to four. Heiser converted a pair of free throws with 34 seconds left and then hit on a jumper to send the game into overtime. A three-point play after a freeze of nearly two minutes sent North Carolina off and running, and the Tigers never caught up. Heiser's 18 points paced both teams as Ed Hummer did a great job on Larry Miller, paring his 23-point average to 16. New night as the Tarheels whipped B.C., 96-80, Miller made 31.

St. John's Beaten, 78-58. More than anything else, it was a chance to ring up victory number 25 on the season that pumped adrenalin back into the Tigers for Saturday night's somewhat meaningless exhibition contest. They took complete charge of one of the east's best teams, running away from St. John's in the second half to win 78-58. It was Chris Thomforde's night as the blond 6-9 sophomore scored 22 points and hauled down 15 rebounds in the 32 minutes he played, a far superior performance to that given by St. John's Sonny Dove, who achieved All-East ranking. Once again, Hummer's fine defensive work held the opposition's top scorer far below his average as Dove made only 12.

Van Breda Kolff made an aud long gesture pay off as he started five seniors: Robby Brown, Ed Hummer, Gary Walters, Bill Koch and Larry Lucchino. Later Al Adler was inserted, producing 10 welcome points as he concluded his career.

It took Thomforde and Heiser to bail the Tigers out, as they trailed, 13-5, in the early going but rallied for a 32-28 half-time lead. Thereafter it was all Princeton, as a 14-to-2 burst paced by Thomforde made it 46-30 and another 57-39 lead was translated into a 20-point decision at the final buzzer.

What About Next Year? The Tigers will start the 1967-68 season without six seniors, two of whom have been three-year regulars. They lose Captain Ed Hummer, a major asset on defense when at his best, and Gary Walters, the quarterback whose adept ball-handling put so much of the offense in motion.

They will miss 6-9 Robby Brown, whose ability to stand in for Thomforde often proved valuable, and 5-10 Larry Lucchino, who occasionally took over for Walters with unusual poise and ability for a player who never started a game. Other members of the Class of '67 are Koch and Adler; chances are that all six would have held down starting positions on most of the other Ivy teams.

From a freshman team that won 12 and lost 3, the top three players are 6-3 Jeff Petrie, 6-7 John Hummer and 6-8 Mike Mardy. Advance theory from the hotbed of basketball fans in these parts is that Petrie, a fine ball-handler with a good outside shot, will replace Walters and Hummer will take over for his older brother. That would leave Mardy to spell Thomforde, Heiser and Harlow, of course will return as seniors.

The upcoming sophomores also have a number of other players who will provide good bench strength, although every one of them — including the top three — must learn the art of defense in big-time, a major assignment for every newcomer to the varsity. Intriguingly, the Ivy League will be stronger than at any time in the past; Cornell retains the basic components of its good team, Yale will add a top freshman team to unusual holdover strength and Columbia can blend a freshman quintet that beat Princeton's twice with the returning 7-1 Dave Newmark.

The 25-3 record that the current Princetonians compiled already looks extremely impressive. It may well be more than their immediate successors, strong as they appear on paper, can match.

LACROSSE ON SATURDAY
And Baseball Wednesday. Despite the presence of winter snow on fields where athletes hope for firm, dry footing, Princeton's spring sports season will begin this weekend. The Tiger lacrosse team will open Saturday at 2 on Campbell Field (east of Palmer Stadium) against Maryland. Thinking in the sport is akin to football — if you have a game scheduled, you play it, regardless of conditions. A last-minute switch in location is possible if another field drains better.

The Terrapins are invariably strong, and this season believe they have a shot at dethroning Navy, national champion for the past three years. Princeton has not won from Maryland since 1963.

No better than 4-7 and fourth in the Ivy League a year ago, the Tigers hope to improve after one of the few poor lacrosse seasons in the past two decades. Marty Eichelberger, veteran midfielder and a standout safetyman in football, is the 1967 captain.

The 1967 schedule:

March 25, Maryland.
April 1, Johns Hopkins, away; 9, Navy; 15, Army, away; 22, Brown (); 29, Harvard ().

May 3, Pennsylvania (), away; 6, Yale (), away; 9, Rutgers; 13, Dartmouth (); 20, Cornell (), away.
* Ivy League game.

Ball Team Will Be Busy.

Unless ground conditions improve, Princeton's baseball team will have trouble opening its season on Clarke Field next Wednesday. Contrary to last spring, the late snow and cold weather have severely curtailed outdoor drills for Eddie Donovan's squad and there is some question as to the condition of the diamond next week.

The University of New Hampshire will provide the opposition in the season's opener at 1:30 next Wednesday afternoon. Next day, Trenton State is on the schedule at the same hour, while a morning-afternoon double-header with the University of Maine is set for Friday. Starting times are 10:30 and 2.

The last of five games in four days will be played Saturday, April 1, against NYU. That will also begin at 2 o'clock.

TIME TO REBUILD

For PHS Trackmen, nineteen sixty-six was a red letter year for the Blue and white track of Princeton High School.

After winning every dual meet but one, it climaxed the season by capturing the State Group 4 championship at the Rutgers Stadium. The team's outstanding hurdler, Bart Bennett, won the state title in the 180-low hurdles. In addition, Bennett set school records of 19.1 and 14.5 in the low and high hurdles, and teammate Carl DeCavaleante set a new school mark in the shot of 54 feet, 4 inches.

It was quite a year to think back on but the question facing coach Jerry Groninger now is: Can he put two good seasons back-to-back? The answer: no.

"We're going to have to go with a lot of sophomores and juniors, which is one reason why we won't have an exceptional team," commented Groninger. "You have to have more experience, more seniors on a team to have a squad like we had last year."

"When we lost Bennett, we lost 15 points right there. Bennett won first place in both hurdles and the broad jump in virtually every dual meet last year, scoring more than 150 points. 'DeCal' was about the same. You can't give up points like that."

This spring, few events are set but two exceptions are the 440 and the mile. The quarter-mile will feature George Eufield, a returning letterman, and John Westefeld, both of whom are juniors. Joining them will be sophomore Julian Solotorsky.

Michael Top Miller, Veteran Pete Michael will pace PHS in the mile. He will be backed up by junior Chris Haring about whom Groninger said: "This is Chris' third year; I think he ought to come into his own this spring."

In the field events, where the Little Tigers last year built up their margins of victory, the team will be considerably weaker. A major exception will be the javelin, one event in which both co-captains, PHS TRACK CO-CAPTAIN: Keith Conover, with Dan Tindall, will captain the Princeton High School track team this spring.

Keith Conover and Dan Tindall, excel. At the state meet last year, Tindall placed third with a toss of 209.3 less than three feet under the 1957 mark of 211-8.5. Set by the renowned Nick Kovalikides in 1957, Tindall seems to be a leadpipe cinch to better that mark.

Conover is only a few feet behind Tindall in the javelin.

Both are expected to compete in the shot and discus, where they will be joined by Charles Madden and Doug Van Doren.

Slated for the half-mile are John Kosen, a junior who ran the two-mile last year; Alan Cohen, a former miler, and Gordon Moore. A fourth possibility, according to Groninger, is Hutchinson Smith, a transfer student from Ohio who has run the half and quarter-mile.

Two Milers. Seniors Charles Lappan, junior Keith Lawder and sophomore John Peterson are earmarked for the two-mile. This event was introduced in a high school level for the first time last year.

To bolster the sprints, weakened by the departure of Vince Boccanfusco and Ed McEwen, Groninger has converted a former standout in the 440, Dave Moomaw to a sprinter. Two backfield football players, Jeff Bullock and Tom Taylor, are also looked upon to take up the slack in the 100 and 220.

Senior Bill Weeks and Greg Johnson, a sophomore, are expected to take over for the displaced Moomaw in the quarter mile. Weeks has considerable experience on the track.

Other events — the pole vault, broad and high jumps and hurdles — are sizeable question marks and will be until the weather breaks. "We've got a couple of boys in mind, but it's too early to say whether they will develop," said Groninger.

He and his assistant coach, Dick Wood, have no illusions about repeating last year's successes. But still the thought remains, with boys like Tindall, Conover, Michael and Moomaw back, can a winning season be far behind?

The 1967 schedule: April 5, Steinert; 7, St. Anthony; 13, Ewing; 19, New Brunswick; 21, Bridgewater-Raritan; 25, Franklin, away; 27, Trenton; 29, Penn. Relays.

May 2, Notre Dame, away; 5, Pennington; 10, Mercer County Meet; 15, Somerville, away; 16, Lawrence; 20, Southern Division Meet at Ewing; 22, Hamilton; 24, New Brunswick Invitational; 27, South Jersey Group 4 at Asbury Park; 31, Greater Jersey Conference at Madison.

June 3, State Meet, Rutgers Stadium.

The tableau includes model buildings of the Temple, the palace of the Roman procurator, Herod's palace, the courtyard of Pilate, the Garden of Gethsemane the walls of Jerusalem and the crucifixion scene at Calvary.

The display was created by the Rev. Renato Saudelli, assisted by Richard Koenig of Somerset, Erwin Van Allen, production engineer of Station WCTC, and Richard Willard, WOR radio announcer. It is open daily from 2 to 5 and 7 to 9 through March and on weekends only during April and May.

dawn this Saturday.

Purim observances not only commemorate the deliverance of the ancient Jews from the persecution of Haman, the Persian chief minister, as recorded in the Book of Esther, but also serve as an occasion for denunciation of tyranny in any form.

A South African, Dennis Brutus, will speak on the topic, "Hamon in Johannesburg: Apartheid and its Human Meaning," at 8:15 p.m. service this Friday in the Princeton Jewish Center 435 Nassau Street.

"On this Shabbat Zachor, the Shabbat before Purim," Rabbi Everett Gendler announced, "It is appropriate that we be reminded of the appalling oppression and injustice in South Africa which is one of the prime examples of our day of Humanism still at work."

Mr. Brutus, a poet, teacher and sportsman, is one of South Africa's "Coloreds." A high school teacher for 14 years, he was subjected to political arrest and was imprisoned for 18 months on Robben Island. Now living in London, he works for the International Aid and Defense Fund on behalf of the victims of injustice in South Africa.

A Report from 1st Trenton National Bank

MORTGAGE MONEY

There has been much talk about "tight" money, about a shortage of money for mortgage loans. We believe these reports to be exaggerated.

During 1966, we continued to serve our customers and, to the best of our ability, to meet the needs of our community. During the year, we made mortgage loans of $11,000,000, 34% more than in 1965; all on properties in the Mercer County area.

In 1967 we are continuing our active mortgage lending policy. We have ample funds available and our terms and rates are fully competitive. If you are thinking of building or buying a house—call us at 989-7700, or visit any of our eleven conveniently-located offices. (See the phone book for the office nearest you.)

Funny, you don't look like a 4-cycle, 1498cc, 73hp, overhead valve V-4.

Bet you still think SAAB has only one kind of engine. Our famous 2-cycle, 3-cylinder "Shrike" engine. Well don't bet on it. Because SAAB now has a new V-4 engine, too. Zero to 50 in 10 seconds. Top speeds of over 90 mph. More power for acceleration. For hills. For safer passing. (And V-4 SAABs have front wheel disc brakes, for stopping all that power.) Funny thing, but it looks like this new high-performance V-4 should make the rally-winningest car in the world an even bigger winner.
